Note: These well-received riding boots were designed by Linda Poetsch.

Editors' blog

THESE BOOTS DESERVE A MEDAL

Insanely chic First Ladies aren't the only gals to champion a killer pair of riding boots. Thanks to official sponsor Ariat, the Olympic equestrian team will be sporting their own black beauties when they hop atop their warmbloods to compete in Beijing.

If your "Mom, I want a pony" pleas never came to fruition, don't fret--at least you can dress the part with Ariat's ultra-luxe Monaco field boots, fully tricked-out with spur rests and saddle grips. Though W accessories and jewelry director Brooke Magnaghi thinks they might be too literal a take, she does praise the "flattering" cut. And for a mere $900, you too can own uber-equestrienne Beezie Madden's footwear of choice. Tally ho!

By Alysa Teichman

August 7, 2008

Fashion | Shopping | Permalink | Comments

Keywords
boots

CATEGORIES

- Accessories (18)
- Art & Design (33)
- Beauty (23)
- Celebrities (51)
- Dining (10)
- Fashion (67)
- Fashion Week (17)
- Food and Drink (2)
- Jewelry (7)
- Openings (9)
- Parties (21)
- Photography (7)
- Shopping (49)
- Society (10)
- Travel (15)

RECENT POSTS

- These Boots Deserve a Medal
- It's Official: Now We've Seen Everything
- Unfortunately, The Hills Are Alive
- Battery-operated Beauty
- We're Not Beneath a $39.99 Bag
- A Dose of Old-School Glamour
- Bungalow's Blonde Cries Foul
- Gore Vidal a "Funster"
- The Yoga Report
- Sacco a Ping-Pong No Show